Communities Experiencing Inequalities:

No Kid Hungry is committed to addressing the systemic and structural health, social, and economic inequities that disproportionately impact historically under-resourced communities. To ensure we are supporting individuals and communities most impacted by these inequities, No Kid Hungry will prioritize funding organizations impacting the following communities:

- Communities where 50% or more of the population identifies as Black, Hispanic/Latino, Native American, Asian, Hawaiian Native, or Pacific Islander
- Rural and urban communities that face unique challenges in addressing hunger
- Communities experiencing extreme economic hardship, determined through data points such as free and reduced eligible students, child food insecurity projections, and the social vulnerability index score
- Communities where members experience an intersectionality of identities and environmental factors that contribute to a number of discriminations and disadvantages

Communities Experiencing Economic Hardship:

As the effects of Covid-19 continue to be felt in communities across the country, grant funds will be provided to communities experiencing extreme economic hardship. In determining economic impact, No Kid Hungry will review data points including: free and reduced eligible students, child food insecurity projections, and the social vulnerability index score^[1].

Ability to Serve Kids Today and in the Future:

Taking into consideration equity and economic hardship, funds will be prioritized to support community organizations with a strong and sustainable plan for maximizing participation in the child nutrition programs and/or leveraging other programs to combat food insecurity such as emergency food programs (weekend meal programs, school pantries, etc.), children and family outreach and engagement, and federal nutrition program enrollment. Applications should address both the immediate need of alleviating hunger and supporting children, as well as the long-term sustainability of programming.
